

NEWS OF THE TERRITORY

Summary of Past Week's Happenings
Over the Territory of Arizona, Borrowed, Stolen or Revamped.

Fort Bowie, the old military reservation from which General Nelson A. Miles operated during the course of his campaign against the Apache chief, Geronimo, is to be sold at public auction and another landmark of Arizona pioneer days will give way to the onrush of settlers and the progress of civilization. Fort Bowie is located ten miles south of Bowie and consists of 23,000 acres of land, said to be very rich and fertile. The auction will commence at 10 o'clock on the morning of June 20 and will continue until all the land has been disposed of.

Jake Miller, indicted recently in Navajo county, charged with the murder of Robert Johnson at Winslow, was brought to the county jail Monday for safe keeping pending the construction of the new jail at Holbrook. The accused, it is stated, will plead the "unwritten law" as his defense.

Captain John T. Hogue, who was a resident of Apache county for nearly thirty years, died in Washington City last month. He was prominent in the affairs of Apache county and well known throughout the territory.

William Higgenbotham, aged 85, was burned to death in his home at Tempe last week. It is thought that he accidentally upset a candle while asleep, causing the fire.

A. N. Williams, a Douglas man, has invented a flying machine that will fly.

A postal saving bank will be opened at Bisbee May 1st.

Another New Bungalow

Attorney C. B. Wilson, who recently purchased the corner lots west of the court house, has let a contract to V. P. Wyland for a new bungalow and an office building in which to conduct his law and abstract business. Mr. Patrick, the heating expert, has the contract for a heating plant.

Phoenix Goes Wet

The city of Phoenix went "wet" Tuesday by a majority of 321, in one of the bitterest wet and dry wars that ever occurred in Arizona. The county, so far as last heard from, went dry, including the towns of Tempe, Mesa, Wickenburg and Glendale.

"Our baby cries for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. T. B. Kendrick, Rasaca, Ga. "It is the best cough remedy on the market for coughs, colds and croup." For sale by all dealers.

NO SEX IN BRAINS.

Miss Nora Stanton Blatch has been chosen a member of the engineering staff of New York's aqueduct. She was the first woman graduated from Cornell's civil engineering department. Miss Blatch acquired practical experience while in the service of the American Bridge company. She is said to have won her appointment largely through her capacity and capability as an engineer. In this period woman is beginning to demonstrate that brains and not sex must wield the chief influence in every department of activity.

SUCH A FLATTERER.

"What is it?" asked the visitor in the studio.
"An Italian sunset," replied the proud artist.
"Oh!"
"Didn't you ever see an Italian sunset?"
"Oh, yes; that is the reason I asked what it was!"—Yonkers Statesman.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

"You will admit that you owe a great deal to your wife?"
"I should say so," replied Mr. Cumrox. "I wouldn't be invited to any of her receptions or musicales if I wasn't married to her."

New Bakery to Open Soon

The bakery department which will be connected with the Confection Den, will be opened soon. The management intends to run an up-to-date establishment.
